PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERS OFFERED TECH TRAINING

Compiled from staff reports.

Arizona School Services through Educational Technology will offer free online and in-person technology training to public school teachers and administrators statewide.

Over the next three years, ASSET will invest $2.1 million in "My Compass: An Internet Professional Development Portal for Educators." The program allows teachers to assess and develop their technological skills and find ways to incorporate them into the classroom.

The program has received support from the Arizona School Facilities Board, Arizona State University and the local PBS station, KAET-TV.
